Terra Andina, Chile's Innovative, Premium Wine Producer, Introduces Its Breakthrough 2005 Altos Carmenère-Carignan Blend to the U.S. Market

Pioneering Chilean Wine Unites Bordeaux's "Lost Grape"
With an Ancient Spanish Varietal

MINNEAPOLIS, April 15, 2008 – Terra Andina, Chile's innovative, premium wine producer, today announced the introduction of its 2005 Altos Carmenère-Carignan wine in 12 states across the U.S. Terra Andina is the first Chilean producer to offer this innovative blend, which is 70 percent Carmenère and 30 percent Carignan. The internationally award-winning wine retails at a suggested price of $18.99.

"This one-of-a-kind blend, which has never been done before in Chile, marries two unique varietals that complement each other beautifully," said Stefano Gandolini, Terra Andina's master winemaker. "The Carmenère, harvested in Alto Maipo, brings a velvety texture with voluptuous tannins and intense, complex flavors. The Carignan, from the Cauquenes region, contributes to the structure and sweet fruit aromas. These varietals, like 'Yin' and 'Yang,' fit together perfectly to create a harmonious wine that will delight wine lovers."

This intense yet elegant wine, with its notes of blackcurrants and roasted chili peppers, is the perfect companion of spicy dishes, as well as barbecue, grilled meats and cheeses. It won the Silver Medal at the 2007 International Wine Challenge U.K. and the Bronze Medal at the 2008 Wines of Chile Awards.

"We are very proud to share our unique 2005 Altos Carmenère-Carignan blend with American wine enthusiasts," said Chris Haroza, U.S. Brand Manager, Terra Andina. "The wine is now in a dozen states, as well as the nation's capital, and we will continue to expand distribution. We are dedicated to bringing innovative premium wines to America's table."

The 2005 blend is currently in California, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon, Virginia, Washington, D.C., and Washington.
